

Chevy owner Geoff Black with students Jack Hansen, James Pavlinovich, Tyrone Stewart, Bishop and Patrick McHugh.
Picture: Matthew Poon

Highway to heaven

IT was car heaven for Mazenod College students last week when the school hosted its inaugural car expo fundraiser. The grounds were turned into a showroom of classic and modern vehicles, including a Batcar, Spiderman car, stretch limousines, Ferraris and classic Chevis. Full report, more pictures: page 5

Cars drive fundraiser at school

GRUNT MACHINES THRILL YOUNG REVHEADS

Julian Wright

REVHEADS at Mazenod College were in car heaven recently with a host of "boys' toys" at the school's inaugural car expo fundraiser.

The school oval was turned into a car yard for the afternoon, with a wide variety of vehicles on display, including a "Batmobile", a Spiderman car, stretch limousines, Ferraris and classic Chevrolets.

A favourite was Craig Glassby's Top Alcohol funny car - worth an estimated $1 million.

With the bonnets popped, the students had a chance to have a close look at what gave the cars their grunt.

A group of teachers, led by David Hiatt, together with the Young Vinnie's student group, combined to organise the day to raise funds for St Vincent de Paul.

Staff weaved in and out of the cars with collection tins, raising $610.

The day was not just about raising cash for charity and appreciating cars; local police were also there with their vehicles to remind students about road safety.

The school plans to make the car show an annual event.

Top: Students with Craig Glassby's million-dollar Top Alcohol funny car at Mazenod College's auto expo to raise money for St Vincent de Paul. Bottom left and right: more specimens of auto superiority on the school grounds.

Pictures: Matthew Poon
www.communitypix.com.au
d397631

“ The day was not just about raising cash for charity and appreciating cars; local police were also there with their vehicles to remind students about road safety.